Writing Competition

Some of Tregonning Class children wrote short stories which were entered via the Rotary Club of Redruth into a National short story competition. “The (Redruth) judges were impressed with the high standard of writing, punctuation and composition of all three entries, and found it difficult to choose one as a winner.” However, they had to choose – and one story has gone forward to the next round. Well done everyone!

Debating in Tregonning Class

Tregonning Class enjoyed another debate: This House believes the benefits of gaming outweigh the disadvantages.

Lily and Harrison proposed the motion. Hollie and Tristan opposed it. All four main speakers had put a lot of work into developing their speeches and each had at least three or four points to their argument. As usual there were a range of interesting contributions from the floor, including our guest Mrs Lamb. At the end of the day, the motion was carried by 14 votes to 8, with 4 abstentions. Well done everyone.

Scooter Skills

Dr Bike was in school again this week teaching scooter safety and skills! He transformed the netball court into a scooter training area and Carn Brea and Godolphin were ready for the off!

Poem

The woods are coming back to life
Arousing from deep winter
sleep Stretching, reaching for the sun Rain shower washed and
dewy sparkled
Donning wardrobe lacy
green Redbud sprayed and dogwood dotted Costumes for the Spring Ballet
Dancing, floating gracefully
Over lush and verdant carpeting
The woods are coming back to life!

There are 21 Clues about Richard Trevithick in the article below. Match the clues to the Camborne shop window where they appear and have the chance to win a prize. The first 20 most correct entries will receive a copy of the book Genius: Richard Trevithick's Steam Engines by Philip Hosken, worth £7.99. In addition there will be a first prize of £100, a second prize of £60 and a third prize of £40.

Richard Trevithick 1771 – 1833

Born on April 13th 1771, Richard was only a few months old when his family moved to a Cottage in Penponds. He married Jane Harvey in 1777 and by 1798 was already building table top model prototypes of high pressure steam engines of a road carriage. His first road locomotive ran on Christmas Eve 1801 followed by the second road locomotive in 1803. The world's first recorded railway journey was of his Pennydarren locomotive in 1804. His legacy to the maritime industry included the invention of the iron buoy, designs of iron ships, a version of the screw propellor, and a steam driven paddle steamer that used the principals of the hovercraft to make it more efficient. He also designed and built a steam barge with an inboard crane for more efficient loading and unloading of cargo at the docks. Other inventions included a threshing machine and the night storage heater.

He spent ten years in South America and while he was away Jane's family established her in the White Hart Hotel, Hayle, to enable her to support herself and their children. He spent six years in Peru, where he erected steam engines high in the Andes mining for silver. He also established a mint in Lima which proved vital to the Peruvian economy which was so volatile at that time. Destitute and desperate to return home he and a fellow traveller called Gerard pioneered a route across the isthmus of Costa Rica. He experienced horrendous hardships in the South American jungle, including being nearly eaten by a crocodile, before sailing home penniless.

In 1828 he toured Holland with the objective of draining the Zuyder Zee and although machinery was manufactured and trialled in Cornwall, it never arrived, and Holland had to wait another hundred years. His last major project was to build a monument to celebrate the Reform Act, to be erected in London. His design was an iron tower so high that only recently The Shard would have surpassed this in height. Unfortunately, while he was working in Dartford he suddenly died at the Bull Hotel on 23rd April 1833 and the enthusiasm for the monument died with him.
